Market Review

Market Review - 24/03/2006 22:16 All times in GMT

Dollar tumbled on weaker-than-expected U.S. new home sales data

The dollar tumbled versus major currencies, trimming a weekly advance after a weaker-than-expected housing report curbed market expectations of further greenback-boosting Federal Reserve interest rate hikes.

A government report showed U.S. new home sales plunged 10.5% in February to an annual rate of 1.08 million, which is the biggest drop in nearly nine years. Another government report released earlier showed orders for durable goods, excluding transportation, fell 1.3% last month, compared with the forecast for a 1% increase. Overall orders rose 2.6 percent.

The single currency rallied versus the dollar from 1.1952 to 1.2047. The greenback tumbled from 118.50 to 117.40 and from 1.3194 to 1.3089 against Japanese yen and Swiss franc respectively. Cable rallied from 1.7310 to 1.7445.

Against other currencies, New Zealand dollar fell sharply against the U.S. currency to a 10-month low of 0.6080 after a surprise 0.1% contraction in New Zealand's economy for the fourth quarter of 2005.

The Fed is widely expected to raise rates from 4.5% to 4.75% when its policy-making Federal Open Market Committee meets on Monday and Tuesday. Financial markets are pricing in a roughly 83% chance that the Fed will raise rates again to 5.0% at its meeting in May.

It will be helpful for you to review the frequently-used trading terms in our commentaries & signals inside our member area

One more hint :

"Hold Long" & "Hold Short"

- "Hold long" means to hold long of a currency, for example, to hold long USD/JPY at 120.44, means to buy yourself long of USD against yen at 120.44, therefore, others may say, to buy long, or to buy long at 120.44, it means the same hold long = buy long
- then to "hold short" is the same, just the opposite
